Honorary Pallbearers

The list of honorary pallbearers is as follows:
The honorary pallbearers were:
Sir William Mulock, Premier
George S. Henry, E. R. Wood,
Dr. H. J. Cody, president of the University of Toronto; Alfred Rogers, C. L. Burton, Dr. J. E. Jenner of Kingston, John Northway, R. S. McLaughlin of Oshawa, William Inglis, C. B. McNaught, Dr. William Goldie, C. A. Bogert, Col. F. H. Deacon, Col. Harry McGee, J. J. Vaughan, S. Wilson of Winnipeg, T. A. McCrear, D. E. Startup, Charles Boothe, C. N. Mills, George T. Wolfe and J. S. McCahey.

The route of the funeral was from the front of the church, along the north side of St. Clair Ave., west to Russell Hill Rd., north to Heath St., east to Yonge St., and north to Mount Pleasant cemetery and the Mausoleum. Along the whole route were many people. Hats were raised as the cortege passed.

The chief mourners were: Col. F. W. Eaton, Geo. Beattie, C. E. Burden, C. P. Bishop, Col. R. Y. Eaton, Paul Bishop, and W. H. Abbott.

"It was a funeral just for the people who loved her," commented a friend, "and I'm glad it was that way."

After a short prayer by Dr. Trevor Davies, the Lord's Prayer was chanted by the choir, augmented by members of the Eaton Choral Society. Very early the doors had to be closed since the seating capacity of the church had been filled. Thousands outside stood silently listening to the hymns, "Abide With Me," and "Lead Kindly Light," and the anthem, "Souls of the Righteous" sung by the large choir.

The scripture lesson and address were spoken by Dr. Davies, and Canon Woodcock prayed.

She who loved flowers and whose fingers had a magic touch in their arrangement, so that professional florists used to say she was their

But who should say that their

Mrs. Timothy Eaton in her home,
"Raymar," at Oakville.

There she will remain until tomorrow afternoon, when the funeral will be held at three o'clock in Timothy Eaton Memorial Church. It will be a simple service. The body will not lie in state, nor will there be a viewing of the remains at the house or the church.

AT MEMORIAL CHURCH.

Rev. Dr. Trevor Davies, of Eaton
Memorial Church, her own pastor, assisted by Rev. Canon H. F. D.
Woodcock, of Christ Church, Deer
Park, a personal friend, will officiate.
The pall-bearers will be John David
Eaton, Timothy Eaton, Harry Burden,
Eaton Burden, Noel Eaton, Col. Wil-

Reverent Thousands Bow Silent Tributes To Late Mrs. Eaton

All Walks of Life Are Represented at Simple, Impressive Service — Dominant Note of Thanksgiving for Gift of Great and Beautiful Life Is Emphasized by Pastor in Heartfelt Eulogy

CANADA-WIDE SORROW AND SYMPATHY SHOWN IN FLOWERS AND MESSAGES

The funeral of Mrs. Timothy Eaton took place yesterday noon, the obsequies being the occasion for an almost unmanifestation of reverent tribute to the memory of a kindly woman sincere sympathy to her bereaved relatives.

This feeling of respect to the late Mrs. Eaton's memory was alone expressed in the impressive service held in the Timothy Memorial Church or in the restrained eloquence of its pastor in delivering his eulogy over her bier. No; it was the sort of tribute that springs from the hearts of thousands in a last recognition of many years of a world life.

The numbers of people who were unable to gain admittance to the church, but who remained outside all during the service and until the casket, covered with a floral blanket of woven violets and lily-of-the-valley, was carried to the hearse, could be counted in thousands.

On Streets and Boulevards.

Their silent tribute to the late Mrs. Eaton was represented by the line of people extending along St. Clair Avenue and up Dunvegan Road, the thousands clustered over the boulevard in the middle of St. Clair Avenue, and the other throngs who crowded the roadway to the carriage entrance of the church on the west side. Here they waited for nearly an hour until they bowed or doffed hats when the sad burden was carried from the church to the hearse, while a bell tolled.

But it was not at the church only that this popular respect was shown to the late Mrs. Eaton. Possibly the most affecting tribute to her memory was revealed at the family mausoleum in Mount Pleasant Cemetery. Here hundreds of citizens, under leaden skies, and whipped by a bitter March wind, awaited the arrival of the funeral cortege.

Private Service at "Raymar."

At 11 o'clock a private service for the immediate family was held at "Raymar" Oakville, the officiating clergymen being Rev. Trevor Davies, D.D., of the Timothy Eaton Memorial Church, and Rev. Canon H. F. D. Woodcock of Christ Church, Deer Park, who was rector of St. Jude's Church, Oakville, when the late Mrs. Eaton took up residence there, and a close friend, Lady Eaton, who at present is in Europe; Mrs. E. Y. Eaton and Allan Burnside, who are also abroad, were the only members of the family not present.

The funeral service in the church, which the late Mrs. Eaton had built in memory to her husband, the founder of the great company which bears his name, commenced at 3 p.m. Before 2.30 o'clock, holders of tickets were admitted. At 2.30 o'clock the doors were open to the pressing column of people who had been lined up for hours before. In an instant the church was crowded, and those who could not get in, indirectly, participated in the service by remaining reverently outside.

The service was impressive. The casket was placed in front of the pulpit and was flanked by a veritable wall of flowers in front of the chancel.

Reverent Thousands Bow

High overhead there was the large stained glass window depicting the figure of the Saviour, illuminated even on this grey March day by the light of the heavens.

There was the casket, covered with an interwoven blanket of flowers; above, the pulpit; higher again, the purple-gowned choir; and highest of all, the great stained-glass window, representing the figure of the Christ.

Great and Humble Gather.

Goldwin Smith has made reference to the "dignity and equality of death," and such was the excellence of the late Mrs. Eaton that her passing evoked tributes of respect from the great and the humble alike. Among those who attended this service were the representative of his Majesty in this Province, his Honor Herbert A. Bruce, Lieutenant-Governor; the Chief Justice of Ontario, Sir William Muirlock; Premier George S. Henry, Hon. Dr. H. J. Cody, President of the University of Toronto, and other leading figures in the religious, educational, professional and governmental life of the Province.

The service was conducted by Rev. Dr. Trevor Davies, pastor of the Timothy Eaton Memorial Church, assisted by Rev. Canon H. D. F. Woodcock, rector of Christ Church, Deer Park.

To the sorrowing relatives and friends, Dr. Davies read passages of the Scripture, immemorial springs of comfort to Christians afflicted in death. In his eulogy of the departed, he said that the dominant note of the service should be one of gratitude, noting that even those who felt the pain of separation the sharpest would recognize the gift of a great and beautiful life of 91 years.

Recalls Rare Character.

In his restrained but feeling remarks, Dr. Davies mentioned the late Mrs. Eaton's rare personal charms of character "never embittered by sorrow and unharmed by prosperity." The eminence which she occupied in the public, commercial, social, philanthropic and religious life of the community, he also touched on, remarking that with all these activities she never forgot the obligations to her home. He referred also to her subsequent interest in art and literature and dramatic expression, her sponsoring of movements which enriched the cultural life of the community, and finally dwelt upon her tranquil retirement in the later years of her life—"years spent quietly," he said, "on the shores of the other world—but always interested in this one."

Hundreds in Procession.

Along the quiet aisles of the building which had been Mrs. Eaton's church home and her generous gift to the community, came hundreds in slow procession to pass the casket. Men and women who had served and who are now serving in the great organization came to pay their respects to the wife of the founder of the great Canadian company. The ushers were heads of the various departments of the Toronto stores, and its executives. Then the casket was closed and the rich blanket of violets and lilies was drawn gently over the casket, covering the top. At the same moment the first rich notes of the organ sounded softly through the building. Handel's "Largo" was played as the choir in their purple vestments filed in and Rev. Dr. Davies and Rev. Canon Woodcock took their places.

At the close of the prayer offered by Rev. Dr. Davies, the choir chanted the Lord's Prayer. Following the singing of "Abide With Me" the minister read from the Scriptures, selecting the hopeful words from I. Thessalonians, chapter 4 and verse 13: "But we would not have you ignorant, brethren, concerning them that fall asleep; that ye sorrow not, even as the rest, which have no hope." Then, without comment, he read from I. Corinthians, chapter 15, and verses from John 11:21-26, closing with verses from John 14.

"Souls of the Righteous in the Hand of God" was the choir's anthem which followed.

"Goodness and Mercy."

"The dominant note of this service is one of gratitude," said Rev. Dr.

Davies at the opening of his short address to the large assembly, which crowded the church to the doors. "Even those who feel most keenly the separation will be the first to say that this is a service of thanksgiving to Almighty God for the gift of a great and beautiful life," he added.

Referring to the long and useful life of the late Mrs. Eaton, the speaker said: "Ninety-one years was given to our friend, and almost to the very end she retained her faculties and her interests. She lived to see many of her plans wonderfully fulfilled. Her many friends lead us to say today in the inspired words of the writer: 'Surely goodness and mercy have followed her all the days of her life, and she shall dwell in the house of the Lord forever.'"

"We do not say," Dr. Davies continued, "that she had no shadows in her days. Many sorrowful bereavements were hers, but she was not embittered by them. She was also unharmed by prosperity. For many years she occupied an eminent position in the public life of our city, and she entered also into the social, philanthropic and religious life of Toronto. Her first interest was the home, where she had many responsibilities and obligations as wife and mother. With all this, she had time to be interested in other things. In the extraordinary years when her husband was fashioning one of the greatest institutions of our Dominion she was his trusted counsellor and adviser. She had great sagacity and intuitions, which he trusted. She was for many years a director of the company."

Holds Treasured Memories.

Touching upon Mrs. Eaton's interest in art and literature which she evinced in middle life, Dr. Davies indicated the personal dramatic talents which the founder of the Margaret Eaton School had possessed. He spoke of her interest in the employees and finally of the years of retirement, when the qualities which she had displayed in practical affairs served to maintain her interest in all that was constructive. "I have known Mrs. Eaton intimately for the last decade," said Dr. Davies, "and I have not a single memory of her that I desire to forget."

Admiration for her sincerity was expressed. This he named as being one of her dominant virtues. "She was a transparently honest and sincere woman; kind and generous, not only in regard to philanthropies, the Church and institutions, but in thought, judgment and temper as well," he declared. The speaker chose a phrase of St. Paul to apply to her, "Simplicity that is toward Christ." She gathered up all powers, unifying life by one great loyalty, and with it she had the simplicity and faith of a child.

Quiet Crossing of the Bar.

Referring to what he named "the sabbatical years," when Mrs. Eaton entered somewhat into that other life, Dr. Davies showed the relation of these years to the close of her long life, which, he said, was a happy release, a quiet crossing of the bar. "As one had said of the funeral of Robert Browning in Westminster Abbey, a trumpeter was needed to sound a note of triumph; that same note should be sounded for one like Mrs. Eaton, who had kept the faith," was his concluding thought.

Rev. Canon H. D. F. Woodcock of Christ Church followed the address with prayer read from the Anglican Service. The audience was asked to remain standing following the singing of "Lead Kindly Light," while the sad and glorious notes of "The Dead March in Saul" rolled through the church. When the pallbearers took their places at the casket, and the honorary pallbearers led the funeral procession down the church aisle, the organist played the last of the three hymns which had been chosen

Reads Two Messages.

Preceding his address, Dr. Davies announced that many telegrams and messages had been received from all parts of the Dominion and beyond. Two of these he read, one from the Toronto Centre Presbytery of the United Church of Canada, meeting yesterday in Westminster Central United Church, expressing sympathy to the family of the late Mrs. Timothy Eaton and paying tribute to her loyalty to her church and in all fields leading to happiness of others. The other message read was from Winnipeg from the Moderator of the United Church of Canada, saying: "News of the death of Mrs. Timothy Eaton has been received with great sorrow. Please express the sympathy of the entire United Church of Canada."

Grandsons Are Pallbearers.

Five grandsons, John David Eaton, Timothy Eaton, Harry Burden, Eaton Burden and Noel Eaton; Col. William Bishop, V.C., and George Leishman, were the pallbearers. Burden, C. P. Bishop, Colonel R. Y. Eaton, J. J. Eaton, Paul Bishop, W. H. Abbott, Milton Young, William Young. Three of the members of the immediate family are abroad, Lady Eaton, Mrs. J. Y. Eaton and Allan Burnside.

From the front of the church the funeral procession moved east along the north side of St. Clair West to Russell Hill Road, proceeding north to Heath Street East, following this street to Yonge Street, turning north to Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

Flowers in Profusion.

Those who were permitted to enter the church before the service to gaze for the first time upon the kindly face of the late Mrs. Eaton found her resting peacefully, surrounded by lovely blossoms piled in profusion and in beautiful order about her casket. Beneath an exquisite mantle of violets and lily-of-the-valley, arranged with a white centre, and purple border of the violets, woven with soft greenery, reposed one who had so often made such lovely blossoms the messengers for her own kind thoughts and loving messages.

In front of the casket stood a group of flower-baskets filled with iris, mauve stock, amethyst tulips and heliotrope blooms, making a perfect symphony in lavender tones. Behind the casket, the massed blossoms, wreaths and sheafs of remembrance reached to the pulpit, and extended to the full width of the choir platform. The kaleidoscope of lovely color formed a bank of living beauty, crowned by two perfect bouquets in tall baskets, that flanked the pulpit stairs, one filled with wax-white calla lilies and the other holding hundreds of blooms of Talisman roses.

The Floral Tributes.

The friends and officials of the many firms and industries associated with the T. Eaton Company from all parts of Canada and beyond, and the many personal friends of the late Mrs. Eaton expressed sympathy and kindly remembrance with flowers and floral tributes. The following tributes were noted:

CITY BIDS ADIEU TO MRS. EATON

Throngs Line Route of Cortege to Pay Last Homage.

CHURCH IS CROWDED

Gratitude for a Life of Triumph Expressed by Pastor.

The city to which Mrs. Timothy Eaton came 64 years ago, young wife of an Irish immigrant, bade her farewell yesterday. Silent crowds gathered along St. Clair Avenue. They stood in the cold, a huge mass, outside the Timothy Eaton Memorial Church. Long lines of cars slid up and left silk-hatted passengers. Men whose names are known in every household, young clerks from the great store Timothy Eaton had founded, women whose interests lay in arts and letters, old men, old friends, people from every walk of life, every branch of activity where the kindness of the "mother" of a great enterprise had reached, came to pay the homage that was her due. The doors of the church, founded in memory of her husband, were opened an hour before the service began. Friends filed by—the casket in silence and were ushered to seats. The wrought-iron casket was laid in a bank of flowers, not the huge floral pieces tendered to great public figures, but the flowers of friends. Spring flowers in soft cascades of beauty, little sprays tied with love, filling the front of the church, yet in the number of small pieces and in the variety of colors, expressing the intensity of affection. Her home at Oakville, too, had been filled with the flowers she had loved so well, which at the close of a private service for the family, preceding the church service, were taken to hospitals.

When the church was filled the justly. They seemed to have sensed the note of gratitude and triumph that permeated the service that followed. The chord they struck was the dominating one in the address of Rev. Dr. Trevor H. Davies, pastor of the church, found expression in the impromptu prayer offered by Rev. Canon H. F. D. Woodcock, rector of Christ Church, Deer Park, and in the music and anthem, "Spills of the Righteous," sung by the choir. The song of robins was heard again in Mount Pleasant Cemetery as the casket was borne to the Eaton Mausoleum to its last resting place alongside that of the late Timothy Eaton.

The service was simple. Dr. Davies opened it with a short prayer, after which the Lord's Prayer was chanted softly by the full choir of the church, augmented by the Eaton Choral Society. Hymns, favorites of Mrs. Eaton, "Abide With Me" and "Lead Kindly Light," were sung by the congregation and as the first scripture lesson, Dr. Davies read verses which Mrs. Eaton had found especially of comfort.

"We feel that the dominating note of this service will be gratitude," said Dr. Davies. "It is one of thanksgiving to God for the gift of a very great and beautiful life. Ninety-one years were given to our friend and almost to the end she retained her faculties and her interests. She lived to see many of the dreams and plans conceived in early womanhood wonderfully fulfilled. She had a great many friends and was greatly loved by them. These and other things that may occur to you, lead us to say to-day, using the words of the inspired writer, 'Surely goodness and mercy shall follow her all the days of her life and she dwelleth in the house of the Lord forever'."

Unharmd by Prosperity.

"She had many sorry bereavements but she was never embittered by them. She was unharmd by prosperity. The sun did not strike her by day nor the moon by night. For many years she occupied an eminent position in the public life of our city, the commercial, social, philanthropic and religious life of Toronto. Her chief interest was in her home where she bore the numerous responsibilities of wife and mother. But she also entered into many other important associations. During the days that her husband, by his creative genius was fashioning one of the great institutions of our country, she was his most trusted confidant and supporter."

During the last years during which she had lived in retirement the qualities which had come to maturity in her practical life remained in evidence with her, he said. He himself had known her intimately for the last decade.

"We admire her sincerity," he said. "Some would say that was her dominating virtue. She did not capitulate. She was an honest, sincere woman at all times. She was very kind, and she was very generous. And I do not mean by referring to generosity her philanthropy to churches and institutions. I mean she was generous in her judgment, her thought and temper."

A phrase which expressed her great simplicity, her loyalty, and her power of personality was found in St.

From the memorial church she built on the hill in memory of her husband, Mrs. Timothy Eaton, "mother" of the great firm whose growth she fostered, was borne to Mount Pleasant Cemetery yesterday. Hundreds gathered to pay their last respects. The church was filled an hour before the service began and crowds lined the streets through which the cortege passed. Above, a section of the crowd is shown in 1, waiting for the church doors to open. Mrs. Eaton's nephew, R. Y. Eaton, president of the T. Eaton Company, and her only remaining son, Col. W. F. Eaton, are shown in 2. The casket is shown being carried from the church in 3. The pall-bearers were her grandsons, John David Eaton, Timothy Eaton, Henry J. Burden, Eaton Burden and Noel Eaton, and grandsons by marriage, Col. William Bishop, V.C.; Harry Coulson and George Leishman.

Col. Bishop is shown on the left in 4; C. L. Burton, general manager of the Robert Simpson Company, in 5, and Timothy Eaton, grandson, the left in 6. Rev. Dr. W. H. said. She possessed the quality of loyalty created by faith.

Such a life as this had triumphed, he said.

"She had kept the faith; she had finished her course, and brought it to perfect order. So we give thanks to the Lord to-day, lift up our hearts in praise."

Rev. Canon H. F. D. Woodcock, whose friendship with Mrs. Eaton, always a firm Methodist, indicated the catholicity of her sympathies and her friendships, brought the service to a close with a short prayer. The benediction was pronounced and the solemn strains of Chopin's Funeral March were sounded by the organ, played by T. J. Crawford.

As the casket was borne out, the minute bell of the church was tolled.

67.2 - Mar. 1933
MRS. TIMOTHY EATON.

Few women of Toronto, while rulers primarily of their home and fireside, touched life at so many important points as Mrs. Timothy Eaton, who has passed away at the age of 91. So devoted to her husband's work as merchant prince and to the happy circle of her family was Mrs. Eaton, that few knew the parts she played in the encouragement of the arts, hospital, charity and church work, and in the dispensing of hospitality to her wide circle of friends. She possessed a buoyant temperament, and her long years of good health enabled her to radiate her sunshine on countless occasions.

While a visitor to St. Marys she first met the young Irish storekeeper, Timothy Eaton, and soon they were married. She became in a true sense the business partner of the man who advanced step by step in his long career of merchandising. For many years she knew every employee, much of the detailed operations of the store, and to her judgment many of the difficult problems of management were submitted.

Her cheerfulness was unflagging, her democracy complete, and her generous impulses led her to become the first "welfare department" of the institution. Her powers of mimicry and gifts of humor led to her fostering of the Margaret Eaton School of Expression, and under other circumstances she might have become an actress herself. At seventy-eight she joined her son, the late Sir John Eaton, in an air flight over the Muskoka Lakes, when Sir John is reported to have said to her: "Mother, I never was so proud of you as at this moment—seventy-eight and a good sport!"

Happy the woman with such opportunities for service as came to Mrs. Eaton. Happy the family who surrounded her and enjoyed the inspiration of her radiant spirit.

CLIPPINGS RE DEATH AND FUNERAL OF
MRS. TIMOTHY EATON

Mrs. T. Eaton Leaves Estate Of $661,433

Residence Left to Daughter, Stocks to Son and Remainder of Estate to Immediate Kin

The will of Mrs. Margaret Wilson Eaton, widow of the late Timothy Eaton, founder of the T. Eaton Co., has been entered for probate. It disposed of an estate valued at $661,433, composed of: real estate, $51,000; pictures, jewelry, household goods and furniture, $48,138; stocks and bonds, $32,433; auto and sundries, $3,297, and the remainder, $526,065, monies on deposit.

"Raymar," the residence at Oakville, its contents, and auto, are bequeathed to her daughter, Mrs. Margaret B. Burden; Dominion Bank stocks and Dominion of Canada bonds to her son, Col. Wm. F. Eaton; the jewelry is to be distributed in accordance with instructions given some years ago.

Mrs. J. S. Burnside, a daughter, receives the use for life of the oil paintings, after which they are to be disposed of the proceeds divided.

After payment of succession dues, debts and funeral expenses, the balance of the estate is to be distributed between the two daughters and son and the descendants of Mrs. Eaton's two deceased sons, E. Y. Eaton and Sir John C. Eaton.

The executors are Mrs. Eaton's daughter, Mrs. J. S. Burnside; her nephew, R. Y. Eaton, and Harry McGee.

Mrs. Eaton died at Oakville on March 18, after a brief illness, after having celebrated her day anniversary.

HIGHEST TRIBUTES PAID

Arrangements for the funeral of the late Mrs. Timothy Eaton to be held today at 3 o'clock at the Timothy Eaton Memorial Church were completed last evening.

A large section of the church will be reserved for the family, intimate friends, and officials of the T. Eaton Company. The list of honorary pallbearers is as follows: Sir William Mulock, Premier George S. Henry, E. R. Wood; Dr. H. J. Cody, President of the University of Toronto; Alfred Rogers, C. L. Burton, Dr. J. E. Jenner of Kingsville, John Northway, R. S. McLaughlin of Oshawa, William Inglis, C. B. McNaught, Dr. William Goldie, C. A. Bogert, Col. F. H. Deacon, Col. Harry McGee, J. J. Vaughan, S. Wilson of Winnipeg, T. A. McCrea, D. E. Startup, Charles Boothe, C. N. Mills, George T. Wolfe and J. S. McCaughey.

The active pallbearers will be John David Eaton, Timothy Eaton, Harry Burden, Eaton Burden, Noel Eaton (grandsons), Col. William Bishop, V.C., Harry Coulson and George Leishman.

A private service will be held at Raymar, Oakville, conducted by Rev. Trevor H. Davies, at 11 a.m.

Entire Establishment Closed.

As was previously announced, the entire establishment of the T. Eaton Company will be closed today.

At her home, Raymar, yesterday the late Mrs. Eaton rested in a room which was banded with blossoms and floral tributes bearing cards from friends expressing sympathy for the family. Mrs. Eaton, who had always loved flowers, and who enjoyed arranging them herself in an artistic manner, was surrounded in her death with all the beauty that rich blossoms could bring. Many an invalid and friend had been cheered by a gift of flowers from Mrs. Eaton's gardens and greenhouses. It was always her delight to express her good wishes with bouquets and gifts of garden treasures. She possessed an ingenious skill in arranging them, so that they always looked their best.

Canon Woodcock's Tribute.

Rev. Canon H. F. D. Woodcock, rector of Christ Church, Deer Park, who will assist Rev. Trevor H. Davies at the funeral service today, and who was a frequent visitor at Mrs. Eaton's home in Oakville, paid tribute to her gracious and kindly nature yesterday in the following words:

"The striking qualities of Mrs. Timothy Eaton's character were: first, her kindly nature evidenced in generous hospitality and a disposition to wish all people well; second, her forthrightness and common sense, her hatred of pretense and sham; third, her humor. Those who knew Mrs. Eaton will always associate the recollection of her with clever, humorous and entertaining conversation." Canon Woodcock was at one time rector of St. Jude's Anglican Church at Oakville.

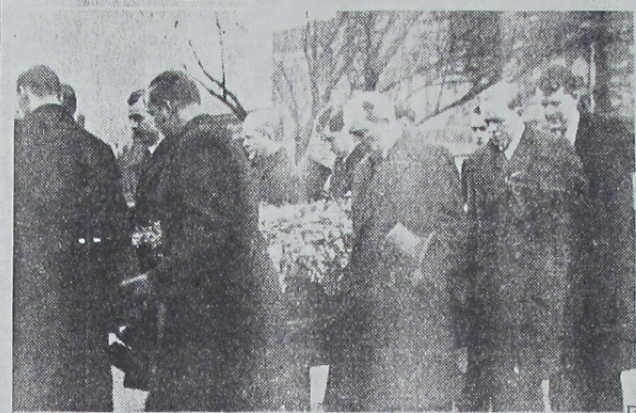

Mayor Stewart paid tribute to the memory and work of Mrs. Eaton, making reference to her long life of great usefulness. "I could not let this sorrowful occasion pass without paying sincere tribute to Mrs. Timothy Eaton," he said. "With her husband, she had been closely associated with the commercial life of the City of Toronto. After a life of usefulness, she has passed to her reward, leaving many who knew and loved her well to mourn the passing of a friend. Her graciousness and her kindly interest in those who experienced misfortune endeared her to multitudes of our citizens. Upon their behalf, I express our deep sympathy to the members of her immediate family."

Miss Mary G. Hamilton, Principal of the Margaret Eaton School, also expressed the feeling of the students and the Alumnae in regard to the passing of Mrs. Timothy Eaton yesterday, saying: "The Alumnae, who have come in contact with her gracious presence have the deepest regard and affection for her. The present school, not having had the privilege of knowing Mrs. Eaton personally, none the less appreciate and respect the great spirit of her generosity which founded the institution which bears her name."

TORONTO, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 22, 1933.

SCENES AS MRS. TIMOTHY EATON IS REVERENTLY BORNE TO HER LAST REST

Popular sympathy and respect for the memory of Mrs. Timothy Eaton, who passed away in her ninety-first year on Saturday, characterized the funeral services held yesterday afternoon from Timothy Eaton Memorial Church to Mount Pleasant Cemetery, thousands of citizens thronging both inside and outside the church to participate in the service, while others lined the route of the funeral procession.
